Here's a quick guide to how to get a new keyboard for your PC running Windows XP. We get it - your keyboard's worn out or no longer working correctly. You need a new keyboard. If you don't have the cash for a new keyboard, you don't have to look any further. Instead of buying a keyboard that you may or may not like, why not find one you love and buy it now? Enter the "Custom Keyboard" project, created by Clay Siebens. In the Custom Keyboard project, you can create your own keyboard design. You can then print it out and give it to your family, friends, or anyone who needs a new keyboard. See, it's like having a custom made keyboard. Or do you just want the 'Microsoft Office 2010' logo stamped on your computer? Thanks to UK product data gathering, the UK Office 2010 Data Pack contains Office 2010 Product Preview Products that include only the 'Microsoft Office 2010' logo, but is not the full release. Here's what you need to do to get this product: Open your computer's Office 2010 CD. Choose the Office 2010 Add-on. If you want the Office 2010 Product only, then select the 'Microsoft Office 2010' product in the Add-Ons box.
